Manual de Imagen Cardiaca Miguel Angel Garcia Fernandez, J. A. Garcia Robles, J. L. Zamorano Gomez [Text is in Spanish] Las tecnicas de imagen cardiaca han tenido un extraordinario desarrollo en los ultimos anos. Tanto la ecocardiografia, como tecnica basica, como la incorporacion de la cardiorresonancia magnetica y el TAC multicorte han hecho que la manera de enfocar el diagnostico de las enfermedades cardiacas haya cambiado sustancialmente en la decada pasada. En este libro se detalla la utilidad de las modernas tecnicas de diagnostico por imagen en cardiologia en el abordaje clinico de diversos sindromes. La mayor originalidad del presente estudio radica precisamente en este novedoso enfoque. No se parte del analisis de las enfermedades concretas cardiovasculares sino de los principales sindromes, situaciones o circunstancias en los que se agrupan aquellas. La obra no esta especificamente orientada al ecografista ni al radiologo cardiovascular sino que, sin duda, despertara el interes del internista, del medico de familia e incluso del estudiante de medicina o de enfermeria. Es un libro con solida base tecnica pero con orientacion eminentemente clinica y, por tanto, practica. Con este manual, el profesional dispondra de una herramienta que le ayude a comprender, evaluar, interpretar e indicar con mayor precision las tecnicas de imagen de mas utilidad para el estudio inicial de su paciente.
