How do we exist? What does life mean? Is love a crime? Could it all be a dream? These are the uncertain, and at times, frustrating and frightening, questions that we as human beings with the faculty of rational thought find ourselves asking at various times as we make our way through our lives. I am not attempting to explain these deep philosophical, existential questions with a single definitive answer. Rather, it is my intention to communicate my vast knowledge and experiences of life, which together provide wisdom, through the artistic structure of sonnets. Each poem relates to my life while also revealing universal themes to which everyone may relate. By carefully reading and analyzing this collection, you will gain a clearer perspective and move further along the path to real peace. Peace-Love. All human beings.
