Lily & The Black Moonstone Mary Seelye

When the witch ZeVora, invades the once peaceful town of Lid, sixteen year old orphaned Lily becomes the unexpected hero to the people. Sent off into the unknown by the Gypsy who raised her, she embarks on a journey to find the Black Moonstone that will abolish the evil in the lands. Lily is met with many strange and unusual obstacles that nearly put an end to her quest. A mule with a taste for sorrow, a factory run by goblins with a penchant for collecting prisoners, a forest of hypnotic tendencies in a beautiful shade of purple, beasts of all shapes and sizes, and a personal realization that she's much bigger than the orphan she was. Along the way she makes new friends, sees unbelievable new lands, finds herself imprisoned by creatures older than she could imagine, and realizes that fins don't make something friendly. She also finds that ZeVora is the least of their problem. Meeting her estranged father, Oliver Harkland, finally gives Lily a glimpse into the life she was taken from and proves she should be grateful for the life she'd been given. Lily's array of hardships and triumphs provide her with the strength she needs to succeed and bring her world back into order once and for all.
